The restrictions we faced, while fighting a worldwide pandemic, became one of the main drivers of the digital transformation. Telehealth services emerged, health care processes like electronic health records were adapted, and the need for telemedical and teletherapeutic applications increased.

In this year's COOP4HEALTHCARE Think Tank we want to discuss what it takes to bring telehealth services from a very first idea to exploitation. How can solutions evolve on the market sustainably and in the long term? Which barriers can arise, and which best practice solutions are already available?
